LIFE'S AUTUMN.

Before my door, in autumn's best,
Proudly the elm tree branches spread;
And verdure sprang beneath my feet,
And calmness played around my head;
Just as I traced the sunny hours,
And looked the sun's radiant power.

But when, with withering hand, the frost
Shrivelled the leaves, and gnawed and bare,
Their red and brown leaves fell from the tree,
And I saw the sun's light fade,
I mourned the summer's glories fled,
A woe that came of sadness shed.

When, when, came, cold and chill,
The winter's hand, and frosty chain,
And then, when cold and rain and hail,
Whirled in a storm, I saw the rain reign,
Through the storm, and I saw the stars,
Through the storm, and I saw the stars.

Thus, as the leaves, like summer leaves,
Gleamed but were not long to stay,
But wither, like the spirit leaves,
And fade, like the spirit leaves, away,
In the depth of winter's night,
I saw the sun's light fade away.

BE HOPEFUL.

There are seasons when the world of ours
Is sad and lonely and dreary;
And every heart is sad and sore,
And every heart is sad and sore.

And when, in the darkest hour,
A ray of light is shown,
To cheer our darkened souls,
And to show the way to home.

But wait, and from the darkest day,
That breaks and ends in sorrow,
The clouds will pass away,
And the sun will shine once more.

No matter how dark the storm,
No matter how dark the storm,
And how dark the storm,
And how dark the storm.

Then cheer up, sad and despondent heart,
Whence every hope was parting;
The life has not yet been given,
Oh! cheer up, sad and despondent heart.

Though life is but a passing show,
Still hold it dear and true;
The life is but a passing show,
Still hold it dear and true.

Shingling a House.

James H. was a young man who commenced life with every flattering prospect, and a wife and children soon blessed him. Unhappily, by slow degrees he became—a make a long matter short—a drunkard. One evening he left his wife in tears, as was too common, repaired to the house of a man who sold him the deadly poison, and drank so much that he sank down in a kind of stupor, easily mistaken for sleep. All his companions had deserted him. Near midnight the landlord's wife came into the bar room and told him:

"I wish that man would go home, if he's got one to go to."

"Hush! hush!" says the landlord, "he will call for something else directly."

"I wish he would make haste about it, then, for it is quite every honest person was in bed," said the wife.

"He's taking the shingles off his house and putting them on ours," said the landlord. At this time James began to come to his senses, and commenced rubbing his eyes, and stretched himself, as if he had just awoken, saying, "I believe I'll go."

"Don't be in a hurry, James," said the landlord.

"O, yes, I must go," says James, "too good night!" and off he started.

After an absence of some time, the landlord one day met and accosted him:

"Hail, Jim, why haven't you been to see us?"

"Why," says James, "I had taken shingles enough off my house, and it began to leak, so I thought it was time to stop the leak, and I've done it."

The tavern-keeper, astonished, went home to tell his wife about it, and James ever since has left his own house, and attended to his own business. He is now a happy man, and his wife and children are happier than ever.

"Only Sad Faith."

A friendly correspondent from Washington, Pa., says:

"Like most other small towns, we have here a 'color' church, where many amusing things are said, highly exhilarating to the spirits of the few who occasionally visit our 'Hayti' meeting house. 'Hayti' is the name given to that part of our town where 'passions of color' reside. One winter evening, when the colored preacher was in the midst of his sermon, making a most violent if not most eloquent appeal to his hearers, one of the legs of the stove, which had been loosened in some way, fell out, and as a natural consequence, the red hot stove tipped over at an angle alarmingly suggestive of fire. The audience, of course, commenced crowding out of the door like a flock of black sheep. But the preacher was equal to the occasion. Addressing one of his prominent members, he cried out:

"Pick up de stove, Brudder Bolah!—pick up de stove!—do Lor! won't he him bump you! Only sad faith!"

Poor brother Bolah had unfortunately too much faith, and immediately seized it, all glowing as it was; but no sooner had his fingers come in contact with the scorching iron, than he dropped it again, and dancing around on one foot, blowing his skinned fingers, he exclaimed with all the energy he could throw into his voice:

"De stove! he won't! de stove! he won't!"

Colonel Aaron Finch was a distinguished democratic politician in Indiana. He had some thoughts of emigrating to Arkansas; and meeting a gentleman from that part of the country, asked him what were the inducements to remove to that State. Particularly he inquired about the soil. The gentleman informed him that land was good, but in some parts very sandy. Colonel Finch then asked about the politics of Arkansas, and the prospects of a stranger getting ahead.

"Very good," was the reply. The democratic party is strongly in the majority; but to succeed, a man must load himself down with revolvers and bowie knives, and fight his way through."

"Oh, well," said the Colonel, "on the whole, from what you say, I think Arkansas wouldn't suit me. I rather think the soil is a little too sandy!"

A kind-hearted little spouse, bonneted and shawled, very recently appeared at the door of a room in which her good-natured liege lord was about to indulge in a comfortable nuzzle.

"My dear, I am going shopping. What shall I bring you to comfort you?"

"I don't know, love; I don't think of anything I want particularly just now."

"Come and kiss me. I will tell you, however, what I want you to not bring me."

"What is it, pray?" "Pray don't, bring me in debt."

It was told, as a good natured joke, of an old doctor, that being on a visit to a village where he had spent the earlier part of his life in practice, he one morning before breakfast went into a churchyard near the house where he was stopping.

Breakfast being placed upon the table, the doctor was inquired for. "I believe," said the servant, who had seen where he went, "that he has gone to pay a visit to some of his old patients."

If you would increase the size and prominence of your eyes, just keep an account of the money you spend foolishly, and add it up at the end of the quarter.

If running after women be a sin, it is very easily checked. All that is necessary is for the women to stop running away from the men.

A Kind Act Repaid.

The Raleigh (N. C.) Standard, in an obituary of William Hill, late Secretary of State of North Carolina, relates the following:

"Many years ago he journeyed in Tennessee, then almost an unbroken forest. At that time it was a perilous undertaking. Robberies were by no means uncommon, and Indian outrages were of frequent occurrence. The passage of the mountains, too, was fraught with danger, as there were but few roads, and they almost impassable."

While there, he met a widow lady with an infant, left by her husband's death in a land of strangers, friendless, and alone.

She was endeavoring to make her way back to her relatives in Carolina. Obscured by the generous impulses of his nature, he endeavored to secure her comfort, and to shield her as far as he could from the hardships incident to the journey, frequently carried her infant for hours in his arms.

In 1811, when a candidate for the office he so long and worthily filled, he was opposed by a gentleman of deserved popularity and powerful family influence. Twice they received each an equal number of votes.

Several members of the legislature were confined to their rooms by sickness, and a committee was appointed to visit them and obtain their votes. One of these gentlemen, a brother of the widow above mentioned, but an entire stranger to Mr. Hill, recollected hearing his sister speaking of the kindness shown her by him, and cast his vote, on that account, for Wm. Hill.

That one vote secured his election.

[And that office he retained for about forty-five years, until his death.]

Qualifications.

Somebody truly says that a good wife exhibits her love for her husband by trying to promote his welfare and by administering to his comfort.

A poor wife "dears" and "my loves" her husband and wouldn't sew a button on his coat to keep him from freezing.

A sensible wife looks for enjoyment at home—a silly one abroad.

A wise girl would win a lover by practicing those virtues which secure admiration, when personal attractions have all failed.

A simple girl endeavors to recommend herself by exhibition of frivolous accomplishments and maxims, which are as shallow as her mind.

A good girl always respects herself, and therefore always possesses the respect of others.

Truthfulness.

Of all happy households, that is the happiest where falsehood is never thought of. All peace is broken up when it happens that there is a liar in the house. All comfort has gone when suspicion has once entered—when there must be a reserve in talk and reservation in belief.

Anxious parents, who are aware of the pains of suspicion, will place general confidence in their children, and receive what they say freely, unless there is strong reason to distrust the truth of any.

If such an occasion should unhappily arise, they must keep the suspicion from spreading as long as possible, and avoid disgracing their child while there is a chance of its cure by their confidential assistance.

He should have their pity and assistance, as if he were suffering under some disgusting bodily disorder. If he can be cured he will become truly grateful for the treatment.

If the endeavor fail, means must of course be taken to prevent his example from doing harm; and then, as I said, the family peace is broken up, because the family confidence is gone.

In the recent railroad disaster to a freight-train on the New York Central railroad, a tall, shaggy, hooked-nosed Yankee driver was with six horses in the car which was precipitated down the embankment. It rolled over and over until it reached the bottom of the hollow below and rested upon its side. In a minute or two, the terrible sublimity of the scene was broken and the consternation of the spectators changed to mirth upon seeing the door of upset car thrown open and the head and body of the Vermont driver projecting out of it; his elongated physiognomy expressing the most unmitigated astonishment.

"What an accident!" he exclaimed, "were you doing?" The effect was irresistibly comic, and the spectators had to laugh, in spite of the calamity.

A Chance for an Inference.—In passing down one of our back streets, a few days since, we overheard a colloquy between a couple of dandies, and were just in time to hear the following:

"Now look'er yer, Charlie, Jim must be an honest nigger, then agin he mounteb, but of I was a chicken, and knowed that he was about de yard, I tell yer wot, nigger, I'd boost him, I would."

We were smitten on the point of Jim's honesty, and, therefore, pursued our onward course.—Mobile Adn.

Careful Wife.—"Don't, Charles, go to Boston with that hole in the elbow of your shirt." Husband.—"Why not, my dear?" Careful Wife.—"Because if the cars should run off the track and you should get killed, people would think us a very negligent couple." Husband, (buttoning up his overcoat).—"Ahem! yes I dare say they would."

A Good Investment.—A Chicago banker asked a young lady of that city what kind of money she liked best. "Matrimony," she replied, "What interest does it bring?" asked the inquisitive banker. "If properly invested, it will double the original stock every two years," she replied.

Pat's Encounter with a Hornet's Nest.

An Irish mowing, just a while since, on the marsh forlorn the wood and I seed a big beautiful bird's nest on a bush; and I axed Mr. Davis what kind of a bird's nest it was, and he told me, bad luck to him, 'twas a horn bird's nest; and I went up and peeped in it, but not a bird could I see, nor a bit of a place for her to lay; and then Mr. Davis told me to shake the bush and the bird would come out; and I shook it, sure, but instead of a bird, out came a thousand, ten thousand, each a million of the big green heads, an they bit me till surely I thought I was dead just; and I screamed, an I run, an didn't I run—but they stuck to me an no more could I run away from the varmints than I could from myself; and the first I know'd, I tumbled into a ditch on about two feet of water, an thinks I now howlonie I'll come the St. Patrick over ye, who jist give the likes of such spalpeens a little hovey water in ould Ireland. So I ducked me head under the water an jist hid it there till I most kilt me self, an entirely kilt every mother's son on the hum birds; bad luck to 'em.

Pat ended his story with a deep drawn sigh, and put him to the work of his town employer.

Queer Diet for Old Gentlemen.—The first time I caught sight of milk in a Chinese street, it was in the hands of a female carrying a cup of what I thought to be the genuine unadulterated article. "Excuse me, but what is that?" said I. "It is milk," she replied. "What milk—cow's or goat's?" "Woman's milk, sir." "Woman's milk! for what use?" "It has been bought for an aged neighbor." "And what's the price of that cupful?" "About eighty cents." Subsequently I discovered that it was not unusual for nursing women to sell their own milk for motherless babes or octogenarians in second babyhood, the nurses drawing their own milk to vend it 2d or 3d a cup.—Minn's Life in China.

An Indiana paper says that during a trial in court, a young lad who was called as a witness was asked if he knew the obligation of an oath, and where he would go if he told a lie. He said he supposed "he should go where all the lawyers went."

A Precocious Boy.—A—So your little boy goes to school already? B—Of course. A—And does he learn anything? B—You'd better believe it. A—Can he write already? B—He writes like a lawyer. A—You don't say so! B—Yes; so that nobody can read it.

Editors in Iowa are often placed on committees at State and County Fairs; to what extent they carry their examination may be supposed by the following, which is contained in the report of the late fair by the editor of the Davenport Democrat.

He says:—"The best woven cloth was worn by a lady of Muscatine; also, the best socks and home made shirts." How did he know?

"When your wife begins to scold, let her have it out. Put your feet up on the fire place; roll back in your chair; light one of your best cigars, and let the storm rage on; say nothing—make no answer to anything."

Well, a little more advice, if you please. Having placed yourself in that enviable position, reflect whether you deserve the thunder about your ears, and if so, (as is probably the case,) put your feet gently down, cease your rolling, put out your cigar, kiss your little wife, and endeavor to be a better husband.

God has written on the flowers that sweeten the air—upon the breeze that rocks the flowers upon the stem—upon the rain drop that refreshes the sprig of moss that lifts its head in the desert—upon every pencilled sheet that sleeps in the caverns of the deep, no less than upon the mighty sun that warms and cheers millions of creatures which live in its light—upon the works he has written: "None liveth for himself."

Dr. Franklin's Advice to Prince.—When Prince had written an infidel book, which was submitted to Dr. Franklin in manuscript, he returned it to the author with a letter, from which the following is extracted: "I would you advise not to attempt unchaining the tiger, but to barn this piece before it is seen by any other person. If men are so wicked with religion, what would they be without it?"

Good Rules.—When a Reading girl gets married, she requires her new husband to send all the editors in the city, a bottle of Berks county wine; which they call over there "Gawwha." She makes the Dutch cakes, and sees that it goes along—and the printers have a feast.

The Delaware county girls are more intellectual, and their rule is a better one. They enjoin upon the happy man who obtains their hand and heart, the necessity of subscribing for a county paper—and he does it.

"Tanny, don't you think that Mr. Bold is a handsome man?" "Oh! no—I can't endure his looks. He is homely enough." "Well, he's fortunate, at all events, for an old aunt has just died and left him fifty thousand dollars." "Indeed! is it true? Well, now, since I come to recollect, there is a certain noble sir about him, and he has a fine eye—that can't be denied."

A wise man will desire no more than what he may get justly, use soberly, distribute cheerfully, and live contentedly upon.

Advice to Young Men.

In his valedictory address ex-Lord Rector of Glasgow University, Sir E. Balfour Lytton, lately offered the following excellent maxims to the students:

Never reflect (he said) to be other than you are, either richer or wiser. Never be ashamed to do not know. Men will then believe you when you say 'I do not know.' Never be ashamed to say, whether applied in time or money, 'I cannot afford to waste an hour in idleness to which you invite me; I cannot afford the guinea you ask me to throw away.' Once establish yourself and your mode of life as what they really are, and your foot is on solid ground, whether for the gradual step onward or for the sudden spring over a precipice. From these maxims let me deduce another. Learn to say 'No' with decision, 'Yes' with caution. 'No' with decision whenever it meets a temptation;—'Yes' with caution, whenever it implies a promise. A promise once given is a bond inviolate. A man is already of consequence in the world when it is known that he can implicitly rely on him. I have frequently seen in life such a person preferred to a long list of applicants for some important charge; he has been lifted at once into station and fortune merely because he has this reputation—that when a man says he knows, he knows; and when he says he will do a thing, he will do it.

A Corpse Revived by a Purse of Gold.—A Quaker lady, residing in Philadelphia, was recently visited by a little girl who said her father was very sick and was not expected to live, and that she and the rest of a large family that was dependent upon him for support, were in a state of destitution. She begged that the lady would give her sufficient money at least to purchase the medicines which had been prescribed for her father, and which might possibly save his life. The kind hearted Quakeress gave her $5, and the little girl with tears of thankfulness, murmured her gratitude and departed. A few days after she returned with a countenance more wan and sorrow-stricken than before, to tell her benefactress that her father was dead; all the money which she had received had been expended for a coffin and shroud, and she had nothing left to defray the further expenses of her father's funeral. The generous lady gave her $10, and went among her friends and collected $5 more for her, and then went with her to her wretched abode, where she found the family wringing their hands and uttering loud lamentations over the body of a man which lay in a coffin placed on two chairs in the centre of the room.

The lady, who was moved to such scenes of woe, and was greatly affected by what she saw, hurriedly drew forth her purse, gave a portion of its contents to the little girl with a promise of future assistance, and hastily left the room. When she reached the foot of the crazy stairs, which she had ascended to the squalid apartment above, she discovered that she had forgotten her purse. She went up again immediately, and as noiseless as possible that she might not disturb the sacred grief of the sorrow-stricken family. What was her surprise and horror on entering the room to perceive the corpse sitting upright in his shroud, eagerly counting the gold which she had left behind her, and announcing the result in tones which sounded more like those of robust health than the sepulchral accents of an inmate (almost) of the tomb. She contemplated for a moment the phase of humanity, and then departed as noiseless as she had returned.

Did Charity take a Receipt?—In the Superior Court a few days since, an action was tried which was brought against the inhabitants of a suburban town by a wagoner, to recover damages for personal injuries received in consequence of a defect in one of the highways of the town. The defendants pleaded that they were not responsible, as they had used due care; the plaintiff answered that they had acknowledged the responsibility by paying a Highly Important from Mexico.

It was mentioned a few days ago that the steamship Tennessee had arrived at New Orleans with twenty-three political exiles from Mexico, and that the country was on the verge of a violent revolution. It appears that the extraordinary powers heretofore published, had been granted to the President. They give him the right to negotiate a loan of six millions of dollars, to dispose of the national militia to the number of twenty thousand men, and to exercise such other dictatorial powers as the peace of the country may require. The dictatorship is to continue to the 30th of April next.

These measures, however, seem to have had little effect, and a serious revolution was impending. A correspondent from the Pisanque writes from Vera Cruz, under date of Nov. 24th, as follows:

"The pronunciado were every where hovering about the City of Mexico, and my informant had obtained their plan of operations, which had not yet on the 13th been made public. The new plan of the revolutionists provides for the calling of a Congress or Council of the principal men of the different States, who shall name a provisional President. The person named may or may not be in the country at the time of the sitting of the Congress. This provision, it is said, is proof positive that Santa Anna is the person designed to succeed Comandante in the revolution should be successful.

"When in the city of Mexico I was satisfied that the revolutionists could concentrate their strength upon one man, Santa Anna, and since coming aboard this steamer I have learned, through a source worthy of the highest consideration, that Santa Anna is the man. Negotiations have been pending between him and the revolutionists for some time past, and his arrival on the coast of Mexico at any moment would not be a matter of surprise. His coming will be the signal for the downfall of Comandante, who is said for a month past to have had his trunk ready for leaving the country.

Pitching into the "Saints."

Our California exchanges contain several private letters from Utah, which add to our knowledge of what is going on among the "Saints." A woman at Salt Lake, whose husband was in San Francisco, writes:

"All the men are preparing for war, both old and young. Some companies have gone out to meet the enemy; more are to go when called for. The carrying companies are all coming in; what they cannot bring with them they destroy. They have burned hundreds of tons of hay at the station."

"Brother Brigham says, if the brethren will stand by him he will never let the Gentiles come in the valleys. He says, before they shall come here we will burn every house, fence and haystack, and flee to the mountains. We will make a Moscow of the cities and towns in these valleys, and a Potter's Field of every canon that our enemies come into. Brother Kimball says all the women must have a dirk knife, so I wish you would bring me one."

"You must bring plenty of powder and lead. Brother Brigham says, if every saint will live their religion we will never be driven from these valleys. We shall stay here until the time comes to go to Jackson county. We shall no more be called the traitors of Utah, but the free people of Deseret. Your's affectionately."

It would seem from the reference to Jackson county, that the Mormons still entertain the idea that they will return in triumph to Jackson county, Missouri, from whence they were driven in 1838. News of "Brother Brigham's" Declaration of Independence had not reached California when the steamer left, but it was well understood there that such a declaration was about to be issued. The San Francisco editors advise the federal government, if it is really going to war with the Mormons, to begin the war on the California side, as there are thousands of young men of leisure, who, having nothing particular to do just now, would like no better fun than to "pitch in."

The Late Misere of Emigrants in the Mormon Settlements.—An officer of the army who was stationed nearly a year in Utah, and who passed over the Spencer trail—from Salt Lake City to Los Angeles, in command of a detachment of United States troops in 1855—informs us that he camped for several days at Mountain Meadows, the scene of the late horrible massacre of over one hundred emigrants, and that there is no room for the shadow of a doubt, but that the Mormons were cognizant of and justified this horrible butchery. The Indians in the vicinity of Fillmore, Parowan, and all the southern settlements extending to the Virgin river, are entirely under the control of the Mormons; the chiefs are recognized members of the Mormon church, and missionaries are constantly residing with them. He further informs us that it would be impossible for the Indians to plan an attack upon even a single wagon train, without the knowledge of the Mormons, and that for years no small party of Americans has ever been safe in travelling this route. As a matter of necessity, all small trains have assumed the name of Mormons to travel safely. These Indians are well armed with rifles, and supplied with ammunition by the Mormons, and at the time of the passage of the United States troops through their country in 1855 every effort was made by the Mormons to induce the Indians to attack them—and they were only prevented from so doing by the superior strength and great precaution shown by the troops. This fact was communicated to the War Department at the time in an official report.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

A Molested Request.—In the Tennessee Senate Mr. Goodpastor presented a memorial from citizens of Scott county, asking to be released from taxation, on account of the hard times, and that an appropriation of $4,000 or $5,000 be made for their benefit.

President Kimball, the Mormon, boasts that he has had "altogether about fifty children," and that he is "doing the work of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob."

A Thrilling Scene.

A thrilling scene occurred early Thursday morning, between Washington and Alexandria. The mail steamer, under command of Captain Ellis Rice, had left Alexandria with the passengers, mails and baggage, in connection with the Orange and Alexandria railroad. When near the "half way tree," the steamer encountered a field of ice, which, with crashing sounds ahead and rumbling in the wheel house, frightened the lead horses attached to one of the large omnibus coaches of Mr. Hugh Lathan. The animals started, and in an instant the leaders were precipitated over the end of the steamer into the river. The wheel-horses thus drawn ahead by their companions and pressed upon in the rear by the coach, with instinct true to nature, immediately perceiving their danger, threw themselves back to avert it, but had not the power, and all four of the horses and the coach were at once engulfed in the river below, the large steamer passing directly over them.

One of the horses succeeded in extricating himself from the traces, and rising to the surface swam about in every direction. An hour and a quarter had elapsed before the return of the boat from Washington, and as she approached, the poor animal, almost exhausted, made for her. A small boat was lowered, and the bands succeeded in leading the noble swimming steed to the shore, where every attention was paid him, but he subsequently died. The other three were drowned, and the coach entirely lost. Mr. Lathan meets with a loss of nearly $1,500.

Memory Never Dies.—One of the survivors of the Central America, in narrating his associations while floating on the waves, after the vessel had sunk, gives the following forcible illustration of the powers of memory:

"If I guess I had been about four hours in the water, and had floated away from the rest, when the waves ceased to make any noise, and I heard my mother say, 'Johnny, did you eat sister's grapes?' I didn't think of it for twenty years, at least. It had gone clear out of mind. I had a sister that died of consumption more than thirty years ago, and when she was sick—I was a boy of eleven or so—a neighbor had sent her some early hot-house grapes. Well, these grapes were left in a room where I was and I ought to have been skinned alive for it, little as I was—I'd devoured them all. Mother came to me after I had gone to bed, when she could not find the fruit for sister to wait on her in the night, and said, 'Johnny, did you eat sister's grapes?' I did not add to the meanness of my conduct by telling a lie. I owned up, and my mother went away in tears, but without fogging me. It occasioned me many a qualm of conscience for many years after; but as I thought of it, till when I was floating about unburied with cold, I heard it as plain as I ever heard her voice in my life; I heard my mother say, 'Johnny, did you eat sister's grapes?' I don't know how to account for it. It did not scare me, though I thought it was a presage of my death."

A Dreadful Spectacle.—It will be remembered that the Russian line of battle ship Lefort lately capsized at noonday in the bay of Finland, carrying down twelve hundred persons, of whom nearly four hundred were females. A diver lately descended to the wreck, and referring to it, a writer in the London Times, from St. Petersburg, says:

"Such persons as were on deck at the time were of course at once washed away, but the divers found no less than 1,100 corpses in the cabins 'tween decks, and in the hold of the vessel, all clinging to some portion of the timbers of the ship, or to each other. The horror of this fearful sight appears to have been aggravated by the circumstance that the bodies were already far gone in decomposition, and with few exceptions, the eyes were wide open and glaring. The effect of this dreadful spectacle on the divers was such, that one of them was totally unable for many days to recount the ghastly scene he had witnessed down to that hive of putrefying corpses, and on his persistent refusal to repeat his visit there went home."

Railroad Accidents.—No fewer than five railroad accidents, involving injury to passengers and considerable destruction of property, occurred on Friday morning, within a few hours, on the Pennsylvania and Ohio railroad, between Pittsburgh and Crestline. The express train, coming west at a high rate of speed, between Palestine and New Waterford, at daybreak encountered a broken rail. The engine, tender and baggage car, jumped the break in safety, but the passenger cars, two in number, were thrown from the track and dragged with fearful violence over the sleepers for some two hundred yards, when the forward truck of the hindmost car became disconnected, and the shock, as the body of the car plowed its way among the sleepers, tore seats, stove and every other movable from their fastenings, lying together with the passengers, some twenty in number, suddenly awakened from their slumbers, were piled in fearful confusion together. In an instant the car was filled with smoke, and a moment after broke out in a blaze, but before any serious damage was done the passengers from the first car, who were uninjured, quickly cleared the wreck and extinguished the flames, when it was found that excepting a few ugly burns, cuts, bruises and sprains, the occupants—men, women and children—had miraculously escaped. The passengers being huddled together on the baggage car, the train proceeded, but had gone but a few miles, when it was stopped in a deep cut, eight miles east of Alliance, by a freight train, also wrecked by a broken rail, and presenting an appearance more chaotic than chaos itself. We did not learn whether any one was injured. Of the other accidents we have no reliable information, but believe no loss of life occurred.—Cincinnati Commercial.

Frozen to Death.—The Snow Hill (Md.) Shield gives an account of the freezing to death in that county of two men, one named James Hughes and the other Adkins. They were, it is alleged, intoxicated at the time. Another named Jones came near sharing a similar fate from the same cause.

MONDAY, DEC. 7, 1857.

On Friday last, we had the gratification of listening to an eloquent discourse, in the Presbyterian Church, by that aged and respected divine, Rev. R. N. GARNER, who has for nearly half a century ministered to the Presbyterian congregations of Emmitsburg and Pooey-creek. We were rejoiced to find no diminution either in his physical or mental vigor, and have never listened to him, in years long past, with more satisfaction.

We have received from a committee of the Alumni of Pennsylvania College, a copy of an Address delivered before that Association in September last, by Rev. Dr. BIRNEY, President of Roanoke College, Salem, Va. The subject is "Our Responsibility." We have given it a hasty perusal; and find much—very much that we admire—both in style and sentiment. We take pleasure in asking for it a general perusal. It is for sale at Mr. Baehler's Book-store.

Congress assembles to-day at Washington. So many members arrived last week, that there is no doubt a quorum would be had. The Democrats having a large majority, the Speaker will be elected without difficulty, and an organization effected. The Message of the President will probably be delivered to-morrow.

It is said that the War Department will reorganize that the army be increased five regiments, and will discontinue all schemes for calling out volunteers for Utah, as involving an expense which cannot be safely estimated.

Mammoth Calf. A few days ago, Mr. JACOB GROUP, of Menallen township, had a Calf slaughtered, 11 months and 10 days old, which weighed 375 lbs., and the hide weighed 91 lbs. It will be hard to beat Old Menallen in this particular.

A detachment of cavalry recruits, 210 strong, left Carlisle on Monday last, part for Texas, and part for New Mexico. They were said to be a fine looking body of men.

Mr. Francis Cunningham, of Freedom township, shot, on Monday week, a large Eagle which had been lurking in the neighborhood for several days. It measured 7 feet 4 inches "from tip to tip."

The ladies of the Lutheran Church in Hanover, a few days ago furnished the parlor of their pastor, Rev. Mr. Allenman, in a very tasteful and substantial manner.

The steamer Niagara, which sailed from Boston for Liverpool on Wednesday, took out nearly a million of dollars in specie!

The steamer Atlantic sailed from New York for Liverpool on Saturday, with a million and a quarter in specie.

Dr. Septimus A. Ogier, a prominent physician of Chester county, Pa., attempted to cross the Pennsylvania Railroad on Thanksgiving Day, in a carriage, when a train struck the vehicle, overthrowing the horse and vehicle and throwing Dr. Ogier to the ground and injuring him so severely as to cause his death in about half an hour.

The Florida Indians.—The Tampa (Fla.) Peninsula says that the entire military force now in Florida has been ordered out on active service. It comprises about two thousand men, and it seems probable that they will be able to conquer the Indians.

By the late arrival we learn that the powder mills at Mayaguez, on the Rhine, had exploded, destroying a portion of the upper part of the city. Thirty persons were killed and nearly 500 wounded. The damage is estimated at £80,000.

From Washington.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Judge Douglas and President Buchanan had to-day a full and free interchange of opinions on the Kansas question, without, it is understood, being able to arrive at the same conclusions in regard to the line of policy which justice and policy requires each to pursue. The interview, it is further stated, was courteous, and they parted as they met, friends, regretting they could not view the Lecompton movement in the same light. Mr. Douglas will, probably, at an early period of the coming session of Congress, introduce a bill authorizing the inhabitants of Kansas to call a constitutional convention.

A Simple Remedy.—A writer in the Baltimore Sun, who has been afflicted severely in his family by that appalling disease, bronchitis, has found relief from the following remedy: Take honey in the comb, squeeze it out, and dilute with a little water, and wet the lips and mouth occasionally with it. It has never been known to fail, in cases where children had throats so swollen as to be unable to swallow. It is certainly a simple remedy, and may be a very efficacious one.

The city of New York is the Sodom of the present day. Not a night passes without two or three horrible murders on dry garrotings, and all sorts of bloody encounters.

LECTURES BEFORE THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

The delivery of the first of the series by Rev. Dr. KIMBURN on last Monday evening in Christ Church, was prevented by the illness of the speaker. There not having been time to procure a substitute, the Lecture was postponed until this evening (Monday) in the same church, at 6½ o'clock, when it will be delivered. The public are cordially invited to attend.

The second Lecture of the course will be delivered in the St. James' Lutheran Church, (York street) on Monday evening, December 14, by Rev. J. R. WARREN. Subject—"My Queen of Scots."

Succeeding Lectures will be delivered by the following gentlemen, who have consented to serve in that capacity, in the following order:—Rev. Dr. Baugher, Prof. M. L. Stetson, Edward McPherson, Rev. Jacob Ziegler, Dr. Charles Horner, Prof. F. A. Muhlenberg, D. Wills, Esq., Prof. M. Jacobs, D. A. Buehler, Esq., Rev. G. P. Van Wyck, W. L. Campbell. Addresses are also expected from Rev. Dr. Schmueller, Rev. Dr. Schaeffer, R. G. McCrea, Esq., Rev. J. Bowen, and others.

The Lectures will be delivered weekly, alternately in the various Evangelical churches. Notice of the hour and place of each will be given from time to time.

CHANGE.—Tuesday last, Messrs. BUSBY, WOLF, and MYERS, having been sworn as required by law, entered upon the discharge of the duties of their respective offices, to wit:—Prothonotary, Register and Recorder, and Clerk of the Courts.

It is but due to the retiring officers, Messrs. PICKENS, WATSON, PER PLANK, and BALDWIN, to say that the intelligent and faithful devotion to duty, and courteous official demeanor, by which their official careers have been characterized, are fully appreciated by the public, and that they retire with the good wishes of many warm personal friends.

THE SPIRIT OF THE TIMES.—We understand that Capt. R. MCANN, of this place, and Jacob KISS, Esq., of Hanoverstown, have purchased twenty acres of land, at $50 per acre, from Mr. CREWELL, four miles from Gettysburg, on the line of the Railroad, which they intend erecting a large warehouse, early in the spring, for the accommodation of produce upon the completion of the Railroad. It is said to be one of the finest sites on the line for that purpose.

WINTER AND THE POOL.—The autumn winds have swept away the rascal crimson and golden glory of the trees, and now whistles a melancholy requiem over the dying year amid the leafless branches. Cold winter is coming on apace; and like the advance couriers of an army, its shivering blasts, coming down in fitful gusts from the frozen regions of the North, will soon sweep over the brown hills with remorseless fury, perhaps, covering them with a carpet of virgin whiteness.

Amid the fasting and social pleasures which winter brings in its train, we should not forget our less fortunate neighbors. Want and wretchedness will stalk abroad this winter. While many will rejoice over well-supplied hearths and warm and cheerful hearthstones, thousands will mourn over their poverty stricken fate which denies them even the coarsest fare or clothing to hide their squalid nakedness. Pity, then, the poor.

"Pity, the poor, feel for the poor."—Miss Landon never penned a more truthful line than that.

"Have pity on them; for their life is full of grief and care; You do not know one-half the woes The very poor must bear; You do not see the silent tears By many a mother shed, As childhood offers up the prayer—'Give us our daily bread.'"

Governor Walker arrived in Washington on the evening of the 25th ult., and had an interview with President Buchanan on the following day. A Washington Correspondent of the N. Y. Times says they discussed Kansas affairs at length, especially relative to the propriety of sustaining the action of the Constitutional Convention in not referring the epire instrument to the people.

The same writer says that the President and Walker differ radically in their views on this question, that there is no hope for a reconciliation or compromise, and that open hostility is inevitable, involving a split of the party. Reliable advices from Chicago state that Senator Douglas agrees with Walker, and will oppose the Lecompton Constitution in the Senate.

The Latest News From Europe.

The steamer Fulton, with four days' later news from Europe, seventy-one passengers, and upwards of two hundred thousand dollars in specie, passed Cape Race on the evening of the 25th ult. The financial advices, although not of an exciting character, are highly important, and evince a better state of monetary and commercial affairs in Great Britain than at the sailing of the Vanderbilt—the demand for the discounts at the Bank of England being less pressing, and the money market at London and other central points firmer. The good effect of the suspension of the Bank Act was visible throughout England, and consols closed on the afternoon of the 17th at 89½ a 89½ for money. No report of the Liverpool cotton market has come to hand. The market for breadstuffs throughout England was very dull. Quite a panic prevailed, and prices were nominal for choice qualities, whilst for inferior there was no sale. There had been more failures in Great Britain, but none were noticed among those engaged in the American trade.

New Mode of Stopping a Horse.—A few days since, a fiery young horse, attached to a light carriage in which two young men were seated, took fright at the noise of a locomotive, at the railroad depot in Lancaster, Pa., and started to run away, when one of the young men, leaped over the dash board, and seized the animal's tail, which had the effect of stopping him instantly.

Young Men's Christian Assoc'n.

The undersigned have been appointed to address the Public upon the permanent establishment in Gettysburg of a Young Men's Christian Association—to explain the purposes sought, and the means proposed therefor—and to remove misapprehensions concerning both.

The Association is not intended to embrace only the immature, or such as are commonly understood as Young Men. It is intended for all of active habits, who unite with the necessary moral standing the willingness to aid in promoting the leading purpose. No other qualification for active or associate membership is required, than good moral character, interest in the objects, an election by the Association, and a compliance with unimportant matters of detail.

The object of the Association is to throw guards around, and exert a good influence upon, mainly the Young Men—as those who are most easily impressed, and are most in need of protection from seducing influences. But the care of the Association is not confined to this class. It embraces all within the circle of the activity of the members. That this work may be the more readily, faithfully and systematically performed, an Association has been formed, whose members may be constantly stimulated to duty by the recurrence of the monthly meetings, and those other efficient agencies which cannot be exerted with much power, except by combined action.

The means proposed are chiefly these: First. The establishment of a Reading-Room, in a convenient locality, with a well-assorted Library always accessible, and made so attractive and agreeable as to draw the Young from vicious places of resort.

Second. A series of Lectures designed for the instruction and improvement of the members and the public; and as a stimulus to the formation of steady & studious habits.

Third. The formation of a Bible-class, under competent instruction, for those who wish to increase, in this manner, their knowledge of the Bible and its precepts.

Fourth. The personal influence of the members among their fellows, to the end that a higher standard of morality may prevail, that vice may diminish, and that the precepts of Religion may advance with belief of its truths.

These are the leading means used by similar Associations elsewhere—which have effected great good, and have been gladly encouraged by the intelligent, the orderly, and the virtuous of the community. There is no reason to doubt that similar results would flow here from like fidelity; and we are encouraged, by the spirit already manifested, to predict that the movement will not flag in the hands of the Young Men of Gettysburg.

To carry out the first and second of the series named, funds will be necessary—not an extravagant sum, (for the affairs of the Association will be managed as economically as possible,) but such a sum as will enable the Association to supply those periodicals and books demanded by the various tastes of those who will resort to the Room. A committee has been appointed to call upon citizens for contributions, that all debt may be avoided, and that vigor and promptness may characterize the early movements of the Association. It has been made our duty to second the efforts of this committee by a statement of these facts, and to appeal to the liberality of the public for generous assistance in the laudable work proposed. No action is without interest in the subject; for no one is beyond the reach of consequences which it is the aim of the Association to avert. And it is confidently believed that the public have but to consider, to see how largely the common welfare depends upon the healthfulness of the influences which are daily moulding the character of the young of the land.

New York City Election.

The election for Mayor and other Municipal officers took place in the city of New York on the 1st instant. Eighty-four thousand votes were polled, being the largest vote ever polled in the city. The election was characterized by better order than had prevailed for many years, there being disturbances at only a few points, and these were promptly quelled by the well-organized police. Daniel F. Tiemann, the Opposition candidate, was elected by a majority of twenty-three hundred votes over Fernando Wood, the present Democratic incumbent, but the Democrats have carried a large majority of the City Councils.

Resuming Work.—Manufacturers at the eastward are said to be steadily, one after another, resuming operations, despite the hardness of the times. Manufacturers urge that "there never was a period in which the prospect for the successful establishment of home industry was so great as at present, inasmuch as British competition is, in a great measure, prostrated by over-trading during the last few years."

The largest steam ship in the world has just been built in England, but there have been two attempts to launch her without success. The Liverpool Courier mentions that the first attempt is said to have cost £70,000, or enough to build a respectable steam ship of the ordinary size.

From Washington.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—There is no doubt that the administration will adopt measures with the view of securing to the inhabitants of Kansas a fair opportunity of expressing their opinions at the ensuing election, on the subject of slavery, in the form proposed by constitutional convention. The acting Governor (Stanton) is intrusted with the duty of carrying out the instructions.

The forthcoming executive documents will contain full particulars of the proceedings against the Mormons, and show conclusively the falsity of Brigham Young's charge that our government has acted in the absence of official information concerning them.

The Harrisburg Daily Telegraph, one of the best of our exchanges, will be enlarged during the ensuing session of the Legislature, by the addition of four columns. Those who want full and complete reports of the proceedings of the Legislature cannot do better than subscribe for the Telegraph. It will be sent during the session for $1, one year for $4. Weekly and semi-weekly editions of the Telegraph will also be published at $1.00 per copy for the session, or $1.50 during the year. Orders must be accompanied with the cash to secure attention. Address George Bargner & Co., Harrisburg, Pa.

Heavy Shipments.—It seems that the produce from the West is beginning to move. The officers at the Benwood station inform the Wheeling Intelligencer that for the past two weeks they have been transferring at that point from the Central Ohio to the Baltimore road about seventy car loads, or nine hundred tons of freight per day. The facilities for transferring there are unsurpassed, as an evidence of which it is stated that not long since the steamer Interchange was loaded there with three hundred tons of freight in forty-two minutes. The ice in the river at Wheeling has nearly run out. There are 6½ feet water in the canal.

A man named Jacob Smith, was killed on Friday morning, near Fairview, Cumberland county, Pa., by a bull which he had purchased some time ago. He undertook to cross a field in which the bull was confined, and had got about half over, when the animal made after him, and before he could get out of the field, had reached him. The bull struck him with his horns, and flung him into the air, and afterwards pawed him with his forefeet in a dreadful manner. Several persons witnessed the affair, but could not relieve Smith, who has since died. He was a single man, aged about twenty four.

Woman's Rights.—An action of debt by a wife against her husband, to recover money loaned by her to her husband, being properly acquired after marriage, was tried in the Common Pleas of Perry county, Pennsylvania, a few days ago, Judge Graham presiding. The question was whether a wife could maintain a suit against her husband. The court decided that she could and directed a verdict for the plaintiff for $2,500.

Mr. S. Tuckerman, formerly Treasurer of the Eastern Railroad at Boston, has been arrested for mail robbery, and it is supposed that he is the perpetrator of several such robberies during the past year. His operations were mainly on Sunday night trains. He would take passage at New York with a large trunk, in which was a carpet bag, containing clock weights to make it heavy, and during the temporary absence of the baggage master he would steal a mail bag and deposit it in his trunk. He acknowledges having $800 worth of postage stamps.

A Faithful Murderer Sentenced.—Joshua Eaton, Jr., a boy, 14 years of age, has been sentenced to the New Hampshire State prison for six years, to be kept at hard labor, for shooting Geo. Blissh Swent, aged 15, in Sandwich, N. H., last July. Young Eaton was indicted for murder by the grand jury, but was allowed to plead guilty of manslaughter.

According to the last European news, the King of Prussia has completely lost his reason. He is said to entertain the most extravagant delusions; among others that he is a sub-lieutenant in the army, and frequently complains to the Queen of the obstacles thrown in the way of his advancement.

The Grasshopper Plague.—Grasshoppers are again making their appearance in myriads in Western Texas. At the date of the latest advices from San Antonio they were devouring all the vegetables before them in that vicinity. Having reached San Marcos they destroyed a rice field in two hours. The Austin Intelligencer says that these "locusts," as it styles them, made their appearance in that region two years ago.

Chinese Amazons.—Among the camp followers of the insurgent chief who has been disturbing the heart of the empire, it was computed, in 1853, that there are in the city of Nanking only, about half a million of women collected from various parts of the country. These females are formed into brigades of 13,000, under female officers. Of these 10,000 were picked women, drilled and garrisoned in the citadel. The rest had the hard drudgery assigned to them of digging moats, making earth works, erecting batteries, &c.

An Honorable way of Acknowledging an Error.

Hon. N. P. Tallmage, in 1837, in the U. S. Senator made the following acknowledgment of an error committed by him several years before. He was discussing the currency question, and remarked that when the charter of the U. S. Bank expired in 1811, another was established in 1816. That charter expired, and he was one who voted against rechartering the Bank. He recollected well the remark which a distinguished Senator from Kentucky made to him shortly after he had given his vote. "Sir," said he, "there was a young man from the West in Congress, in 1811, who voted against rechartering the old U. S. Bank. Time went on and troubles came on the country. We attempted to get along without a National Bank, but we found it indispensable to the proper management of the finances of the country, and the preservation of a sound and uniform currency. That young man was convinced by experience, that the vote he had given was an erroneous one, and in 1816 he voted to charter another United States Bank. You have now voted as that young man did at first, against rechartering the Bank; but time and experience will, I have no doubt, convince you, as they did him, that you have committed an error."

And, sir, said Mr. T., I stand here to confess that time and experience have convinced me of my error, and to acknowledge that Mr. Clay was right.

Death of George R. Glendon, Esq.—We regret to see it announced, that George R. Glendon, Esq.; the distinguished Egyptian traveler and writer, died suddenly of pulmonary congestion, at his hotel in Panama, on the 16th ult. He was on his return to New York as one of the agents of the Honduras Railroad Company. His remains were taken charge of by his traveling companion, H. Snelton Swafford, Esq. Mr. Glendon was for several years United States Consul in Egypt, and is well known, also, for his work, "Indigenous Races of Man," and "Types of Mankind." His lectures delivered in all the principal cities of the United States on Egypt and its monuments attracted considerable attention. A few years ago, from the scientific, and his published works were read with no little interest. He was a native of England, and about 47 years of age. The New York Herald says:

In his death, science and the world have sustained a most severe loss; and the intelligence of this mournful event will carry sorrow to the hearts of his thousands of personal friends throughout the United States and Europe. Mr. Glendon was an extraordinary man, of versatile talents, varied information and large experience. The races and the civilization of both continents were familiar to him. He had been the guest of the Arab and the Turk, had traversed the great deserts, wandered over Palestine and Mesopotamia, had been a resident of Greece, was familiar with every country in Europe, and was a cosmopolitan in America. In language a polyglot, an encyclopaedia in information, he was at once the most entertaining and instructive of companions.

A Father and Son Sent to Prison.—The Buffalo Commercial says that in that city, on Saturday, a young man by the name of Haxley Woodworth was sentenced by Judge Sheldon to Auburn for the term of six years and six months, for passing counterfeit money. But a week before his father was sentenced to the same prison for two years and ten months, for burglary.

Arrest of a Female Robber.—On Thursday last, a woman robbed the house of Jas. B. Lane, in Lancaster, Pa., of about $500 worth of silver plate. She was soon arrested, but let go on the recovery of the goods. She then entered the house of W. C. Pinkerton, where she stole a gold watch and a gold buckle. These were soon missed, and pursuit made after the thief, who had started for Reading. She was pursued and overtaken near that city, and brought back to Lancaster, where after an examination, she was committed.

Sad Occurrence.—Miss Julia Armstrong, daughter of the late Col. Robert L. Armstrong, residing in Woodbury, N. J., was so dreadfully burned last Wednesday evening by the upsetting of a fluid lamp, that she died the next morning.

Wm. E. Coleman, a youth of only 14 years, has been convicted at Richmond, Va., of stealing from the post-office a letter containing $103. The jury have signed a petition to the President, asking him to pardon the prisoner, who is the only son of a widowed mother. The brothers Daniel and Solomon Lockbaum, arrested some weeks since for a mail robbery in Knox county, Illinois, were arraigned a few days ago in the U. S. District Court, at Chicago. They were indicted for embezzlement, and were sentenced to ten years' imprisonment in the penitentiary. They, too, are sons of a respectable widow lady.

The Methodist Episcopal Church at Cambridge, Mass., caught fire on the night of the 26th ult., and before the flames could be arrested, the whole edifice was entirely destroyed, together with its contents, including the organ. Insurance $5,000—total loss $10,000. The fire is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary.

Francis Pigg, of Indiana, has run away from Mrs. Pigg and four little Piggs. The Post says he is a bog.

Nicaragua Declared War Against Costa Rica.

New York, Nov. 29.—The steamer Northern Light arrived this evening, with the California mails of the 5th inst., and $1,700,000 in gold.

There is much excitement in San Francisco in relation to the reported murder of a party of overland emigrants bound to California. The massacre occurred in the Southern part of Utah, and the evidence is nearly conclusive that the Mormons had a guilty knowledge of it, if they did not participate in the outrage.

The Nicaraguan General, Martinez, has made a formal declaration of war against Costa Rica. The Costa Rican General has, on his part, demanded the surrender of the Port of San Carlos, and the Nicaraguan troops have fired upon a Costa Rican steamer on the lake, containing the General.

Disaster upon Disaster.

A fearful calamity.—We do not believe that in the entire history of newspaper printing, the press has ever been called upon to record a week's chapter of tragedies, disasters, and fatal results, that can compare with the one just past. To wait all comment upon the incredible number of murders and fatal assaults that have transpired in this city and elsewhere, and which seem to be viewed more in the light of matter-of-course occurrences than otherwise, we will only allude to what may be classed as serious disasters. We have, then, in this one week's catalogue, the unprecedented frost in this State, in Canada, and on the Western rivers, involving the loss of a million dollars worth of property, and a large number of lives; graves on the lakes, in which some thirty vessels are known to have been foundered or stranded, with the probable loss of a still larger number.

The amount of property thus destroyed can be estimated only by hundreds of thousands of dollars, to say nothing of many lives that were lost. Gales on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, in which a large number of coal boats were sunk, involving the loss of $500,000 and upwards of 100 lives. Boiler explosions—in Grifftown, Canada, with one man killed and wounded; steamer Catawba, five lives lost and fifteen wounded; Rainbow, loss of life and money wounded; N. P. Sprague, eight lives lost and several wounded; collision on the coast of Texas, with loss of the steamer Opelousas and twenty-five lives, besides many wounded.

Fires—in Rochester, two lives lost and $100,000 worth of property; Baltimore, loss $20,000; Columbus, Ohio, loss $50,000; Leavenworth, $20,000; McLe, $150,000; Ocean, New York, $70,000; Jamaica, New York, $20,000; Liverpool, $100,000; steamer Henry B. Beach at Baltimore, $10,000; also, in this city, $30,000.

All these disasters occurred during the week just past. The record for the previous week was scarcely less appalling. The old proverb that "misfortunes never come singly," seems to be often verified, and particularly in the present instance.—Journal of Commerce.

The discovery of gold in California, though it has enriched the nation, has been attended with disaster to the discoverers. Captain Sutter, in whose mill the first gold was found, which gave rise to the California fever and peopled that region, has been entirely ruined by the turn that events have since taken. In an account which he gives of the effect upon himself, he says: "I broke up his mills, stopped his tannery, left his lands deserted, and from the prospect of being the richest man on the Pacific, he is now hopelessly ruined." Marshall, the man who made the discovery, is hardly any better off. At this very moment, wraged of every dollar and every foot of land he possessed, he would not have, but for the daily charity of comparative strangers, even a cabin in which to lay his head at rest at night. Sutter says it was in a conversation with Marshall that Hargraves, the discoverer of gold in Australia, first obtained the idea of seeking for the precious metal in that country. Mr. Hargraves, for his discovery, received from the British Government the sum of $25,000, and from the Australian Government $50,000—making $75,000.

A Festival.—A couple of the New Zealand tribes lately gave a festival to honor the death of a chief. The raw material consisted of 15 bushels, 20,000 dried slabs, 20 baskets of fresh eels, 100,000 dried eels, 50 baskets of patiki and maitaitai, 30 bags of sugar, 8,000 lbs of potatoes and konneras, 1,500 pounds of tobacco and a large quantity of flour.

Mammoth Trees in California.

Another grove of mammoth trees has been discovered in Mariniposa county. The ordinary size of these trees is three hundred feet in height, and from ten to thirty feet in diameter. The discoverers of this last grove had no instrument for measuring the trees with them, but they thought some of them to be larger than the largest in the groves previously discovered. This is the third mammoth grove in Mariniposa. That first discovered has four hundred and twenty seven trees, the second thirty, and the last eighty-six. These groves are near the road to the great Yosemite Falls. The most celebrated mammoth grove in the State, however, is in Calaveras county.—California paper.

California Girls.—At the State Fair at Stockton, California, among the prizes offered was a $50 dress for the best loaf of domestic bread, made by an unmarried lady. As many as a hundred delicious looking loaves were sent in, made principally by young girls. A committee of housewives made the award, giving the premium to Miss Anna Vanvildenburg, of Stockton. This young girl is but eleven years old.

Official Fisticuffs.—The mayor of Covington, Ky., and the president of the board of council of that city had a regular set-to in the council chamber on the 26th ult., caused by an overheated debate. They both got the best of it, and were each fined $2 50 next day by a justice, as an adequate punishment for disturbing the peace and quiet of the good city of Covington.

A Caution to Flirts.—In Kanawha county, Va., last week, a young lady sued a gentleman for damages for breach of promise. It was proved in evidence, says the Valley Star, that the young lady was a flirt, and the jury accordingly awarded her one cent damage.

North Webster, the great lexicographer, wrote a letter to his neighbors in 1790

in relation to the hard times, which reads as though it might have been written this morning. It concludes as follows: "Never buy any useless clothing. Keep a good suit for Sundays and other public days, but let your common wearing apparel be good substantial cloth and linen of your own manufacture. Let your wives and daughters lay aside their plumes. Feather and fripperies suit the Cherokees or the wench in your kitchen, but they will not at all become the fair daughters of America; out of the dry goods imported you may save $50,000 a year. These savings amount to $50,000 a year, more than enough to pay the interest of our public debts. My countrymen, I am not trifling with you. I am serious; you feel the facts I state; you know you are poor and ought to know the fault is all your own. Are you not satisfied with the food and drink which this country affords? The beef, the pork, the wheat, the corn, the butter, the cheese, the cider, the beer, these luxuries which are heaped in profusion upon your tables! If not, you must expect to be poor. To ruin you wish for money of gold and silver; a mine would be the greatest curse that a civil befall this country. There is gold and silver enough in the world, and if you have not enough of it, it is because you consume all you earn in useless food and drink. To vain do you wish to increase the quantity of cash by a minor or by paper emissions. Should it rain millions of five into your chimneys on your present system of expenses, you still have no money. It would leave the country in drams. Trifles not with serious subjects or spend your bread in empty wishes. Reform, economize; this is the whole of your political duty. You may reason, speculate, complain, rise mobs, spend life in railing at Congress and your rulers, but unless you import less than you export—unless you spend less than you earn—you will eternally be poor."

Plain Truth.—Some one who understands the subject, describes the education of young gentlemen and ladies, of the would be fashionable sort, which tend only to mental weakness and fashionable decay, as follows:

A young gentleman—a smooth faced stripling with little breeding and less sense, ripens fast, and believes himself a nice young man. He chews and smokes tobacco, swears profanely, coaxes embryo impurities with beer's grease, tells a rattan, spends his father's money, rides fast horses—on horseback and in sulkeys—double and single—drinks Caraway, curses the Maine law and flirts with the ladies; hundreds of which are just like himself, though of a different gender, and this is the fashionable education of the day. The fathers and mothers of these fools were once poor. Good fortune has given them abundance. Their children go through with an inexhaustible fortune, and into the poor house. Parents, you are responsible for this folly. Set your sons and daughters to work, and let them know that only in usefulness there is honor and prosperity."

Horrible Death.

A New Misapprehension.—One John Roles, of Springfield, came to his death in a terrible manner on Sunday evening, September 13th, near Columbia, Oregon Territory. The Telemore Courier says that he had been indulging freely, and being rather noisy, a friend volunteered to see him home. After some trouble he was mounted upon his friend's horse, and, for greater security, his legs were tied together under the horse's belly. The party then set out for Springfield. Roles' companion leading the horse, the animal became restive, reared and fell back on his rider but immediately sprang up and galloped away like the wind. As the horse got to his feet, the saddle turned with Roles, and being fastened to the beast, at every bound his head dashed against the ground. This misapprehension was checked at Braz's lumber yard, upwards of a mile from the starting point. Roles was taken from the horse dead and horribly mangled. His arm was broken in several places, and his brains mingled with the dust of the road.

Horrible Accident.—We learn from the Centreville (Md.) Advertiser that on Friday evening last Miss Goldsborough, a young lady visiting the family of Mr. John Keets, near Wye Mills, and a sister of Mr. Keets' wife, retired to her room for the night, and, as was her custom, seated herself before the fire to read awhile before she went to bed. After reading sometime, she fell asleep, and when she awoke found that her garments had caught fire and that the flames were rapidly enveloping her. Before those in the house could come to her relief she was so horribly burned that her flesh fell in flakes upon the floor. She died early the following morning.

Boy Shot by his Father.—Thanksgiving day, Mr. Wm. Rheinhart, a German citizen of Baltimore, proceeded to the country with his children for the purpose of spending the holiday, and for their amusement, took along with him a gun. During the day, whilst Mr. R. was amending the plow, it was unfortunately prematurely discharged, the whole load taking effect in the body of his son George, an active lad, some 12 or 13 years of age, and wounding him mortally. The distressed father immediately brought the lad to his home in Baltimore, where medical aid was called to his relief, but without avail, as he lingered in great agony until Saturday morning last, when death released him from his sufferings.

A Whole Family Blind.—The Connellsville (Pa.) Enterprise gives us the following: A blind family, consisting of four persons, John, Catherine, Bartholomew and Samuel Huester, were born in German township, in this county; the whole of them being at the time of their birth, and are at the present time, destitute of eyes, but having all the other outward mechanism of the eye complete. This family is indeed a curiosity, aside from the wonderful proficiency they exhibit as musicians. Their execution on the various instruments, violin, banjo, tenor drum, clarinet, is surprising, and they are giving concerts in different places.

Philip Hawkins, colored, convicted at Frederick, Md., of murder, is to be hung on the 29th of January.

A Destructive Insect.—A small white ant has been introduced into the island of St. Helena by vessels from the coast of Africa, and is destroying everything in the shape of wood, provisions, vegetables and clothing. They eat into the woodwork of houses and then eat up all the inside, leaving a mere shell. New buildings in less than two years will fall to ruins by their destructive operations, which entail a loss to the inhabitants of thousands of pounds annually.

There are a great many of our subscribers who have not paid us one copper for several years, and this dilatoriness on their part subjects us to much inconvenience and unpleasant feeling in our business transactions, not being able to meet engagements with the promptitude we desire. This ought not so to be; the sums to be trifling—to us the aggregate is of great importance. We hope, therefore, that if this paragraph meets the eye of any one who has, inadvertently, failed in duty in the above particular, he will think of doing his duty promptly, to relieve us from the unpleasant dilemma of being unable to answer the demands of those who furnish us with paper, ink, and the means of subsistence. This call, we trust, will not be disregarded. Those who receive their papers by mail, will please remit by the same, if no other opportunity offers.

Health Depends on Pure Blood.
BRANDRETH'S PILLS
PURIFY THE BLOOD!
NO MEDICINE CAN RESIST THEIR JUICIOUS USE!
MILD operation with successful effect are the peculiarity of Brandreth's Pills. Your race is subject to a redundancy of vitiated bile, at this season, and it is dangerous as it is prevalent, but Brandreth's Pills afford an invaluable and efficient protection. By their occasional use we prevent the collection of those impurities, which when in sufficient quantities cause so much danger to the health of the body. They soon cure liver complaint, dyspepsia, loss of appetite, pain in the head, heart burn, pain in the breast, bile, sudden faintness and dizziness. In brief, Brandreth's Pills work their way to the very roots of the disease, cleansing in its passage, removing every unhealthy accumulation till the blood is purified, the whole system renovated, and the functions and duty of life become a pleasure, where before they had been sad and weary burdens. Often when nothing has relieved vomiting of the most serious character, whether from sickness or otherwise, where the retching has been appalling, a single dose of four has at once cured, and the patient has fallen into a sweet sleep. When the mind cannot collect itself, when the memory fails; when it is an effort to fix the attention; when our sleep is broken and our waking hours harassed with forebodings of evil, then Brandreth's Pills should be used. If these warnings remain unheeded, rheumatism, consumption, disease of the heart, bilious affections, jaundice, dropsies, piles, apoplexies, and costiveness will surely present themselves. These Brandreth's Pills will have prevented, and nevertheless they do not hurt you. Use them at once, do not let prejudice prevent the use of this simple but potent remedy.
Brandreth's Theory of Disease.
Never extract blood. Blood is the life—By abstracting it in painful diseases you may occasion the patient's ease, but remember, this ease is only the reduction or lessening the power to feel. And by thus taking away nature's tools, you may prevent her from fully repairing the ravages of inflammation, and convert what might only have been the sickness of a few days or weeks into a chronic affection of months and years.
Brandreth's PILLS accord with Nature:
Nature's remedy in fact. When sudden, acute or continued pain occurs from any cause, then to insure quick return to health, you must use Brandreth's PILLS, which will soon relieve every organ from undue pressure, and remove those humors whose presence often occasions such terrible suffering.
Before the World 106 Years.
Twenty million boxes sold and the sphere of their usefulness still extending. Ask for almanack and pamphlet of course. Agents will supply gratis.
Beware—All pills with "241 Broadway" on the label are counterfeits. Get the genuine and they will never deceive.

Consumption Conquered!
HAVING profited by the experience of nineteen years, as nurse in the Pulmonary department in one of the principal Hospitals of the city of London, I rejoice in being able to offer a speedy and permanent cure for that mortal of all diseases, CONSUMPTION.
I long ago became convinced that dugging the stomach, for effect upon the Lungs, was an absurdity; and that the only way to reach them was, through INHALATION. Inhalation enters the lungs through the air passages, coming in direct contact with diseases, relieves pain, allays coughs, neutralizes and dissolves the tubercular matter, causing a free and easy expectoration, and rapidly healing the lungs, producing strength, cheerfulness and speedy recovery. I have effected many remarkable cures of the Lungs and Throat, and can safely assert that Consumptives may be restored to vigorous health, and frequently even when pronounced in the last stages.
That I have been successful in my experiments, I give the following extract from the London "Medical Advocate" as evidence:—
"Mrs. Wilson, late principal nurse in the city Hospital, and discoverer and inventor of the CONSUMPTIVE INHALER—a discovery in the medical world of more value to mankind than all the gold mines of Australia and California—is about leaving England for America, where her only son has made his home. The many Consumptives restored to health by her valuable discovery, on this side of the Atlantic, will, we feel assured, ever remember her as their saviour in this world."
To enable all to obtain the INHALER, I have set its price at the extreme low sum of Five Dollars; on the receipt of which, and address of the applicant, I will send it, with directions for use, per Mail or Express.
